Let us pray for all victims of terrorism, for their tragically affected families and for all the people whom terrorism and war continue grieving and upsetting. Let also us pray for those that cause this merciless damage, that they may think of and reflect on their actions and realize the harm they cause, and may be urged to abandon all violence and seek forgiveness. We pray that humanity, in these troubled times, find true and lasting peace, the peace that will only come about when justice and mercy come together.
